Subject: * Clarification for the Pre-Denver Mineral Sale *

Please pardon the second notice but judging from the number of e-mails today, I think I need to better clarify how the mineral sale works. First of all, the prices shown on the website are not the sale prices. These are the original retail prices from which the sale discounts will be deducted.

For example: Tucson2007-21, the South African Rhodochrosite is listed on the website for $3500. The mineral sale price would actually be $3500 x 60% = $2100 or 40% off.

Secondly, all mineral specimens are discounted but the discounts vary according to length of website exposure and in some cases, mineral species. A Gold specimen or Sweet Home Rhodochrosite will usually be discounted less than a Fluorite from Illinois, etc. Also, items in the new Tucson 2008 updates will be discounted less than specimens from the 2007 shows. The best thing to do is to e-mail the items you are interested in and I will e-mail back the best possible prices for each. I think most will be happy with the numbers they receive.

The links to the mineral sale rooms are:

- <http://www.exceptionalminerals.com/tucson2007.htm>
- <http://www.exceptionalminerals.com/denver2007.htm>

Also discounted are the Exceptional Rooms, various Specialty Rooms, and of course - the Sale Rooms.

If there are any other questions regarding the sale or layaway option, please don't hesitate to drop me an e-mail.

Have a great weekend!

Kevin
