Subject: * The Exceptional Mineral Auction Closes Tomorrow *

Greetings,

The current running Exceptional Mineral Auction will close on Monday, Sept. 1st, at 8 PM central time / 9 PM eastern. Once again, there won't be a staggered close so all final bids need to be in place by 8 PM sharp, with your maximums listed just in case you are overbid at the last second. Proxy bidding is available for all participants. Special note: Due to an approaching storm in our area (Hurricane Gustav), there is a possibility that we may be disrupted during Monday night's closing. It is for this reason that I encourage everyone to send in their maximum bids along with all current bids ahead of time. If there is a disruption, proxy bidding will be the rule and the maximum bids will be my only guidance in determining who the winners are.

This will be the final mineral auction before the Denver Show and the mineral sale also ends in less than a week. Don't miss out on the very low opening bids and huge discounts in both!

If you haven't visited the auction, now is a great time to drop in and grab some incredible buys. If you've already placed a bid, now is the time to check back and make adjustments if needed.

Good luck to all during the close!

Kevin
